Licking County has a multi-use trail system that covers nearly 75 miles with people using the trails in a variety of ways for almost 1/4 million trips every year.

To the right, a map highlights exactly where the trail system makes its way through the county and the names of the trails people use every day. Underneath, a chart lays out the statistics for the number of miles each route covers.

Inluded in the map is the proposed route of a new trail that runs along the South Fork of the Licking River and Raccoon Creek. The trail would add an additional 5.3 miles to the system and connect the Buckeye Scenic Trail to the North Fork Trail, Main Street Trail, and Cherry Valley Trail as well as connecting the Hoback Park Trail to the TJ Evans Trail.

!Blackhand Gorge Trail
Licking County Multi-Use Trail System Overview

This multi-use trail system analysis report is a data-driven project that takes a deeper look into the mileage and travel tendencies of users. The trails include a combination of greenways, separated asphalt paths, sidewalks, and on-street bike lanes. The report includes maps with locations of specific multi-use trails, maps with locations of pedestrian counts, and a breakdown of each multi-use trail length.

73.35
Total Miles of Trail

Bicyclists and other users can use up to 28.52 miles of trailway to travel a complete route from Johnstown to Hanover. 24.34 of those miles are completely dedicated multi-use trail (off-street).

This route is a combination of various individual trails and represents the most utilized section in the county and the longest continuous trip.

US Bicycle Route 50 spans from the western border of the county in New Albany through the center of the county to the eastern border east of Hanover. A sub-section of USBR-50 called US Bicycle Route 50A starts at the western county line and runs through Johnstown southeast to Alexandria.

235,000
Yearly Trips

The bike route is a part of a nation-wide trail that will eventually span from San Francisco to Washington DC. The route through Licking County is part of the section in the midwest that begins in Terre Haute, IN and ends in Steubenville, OH.